Apresentação

O presente trabalho é um compilado de textos produzidos por estudantes do primeiro ano do curso técnico de informática do IF Sertão Pernambucano – Campus Salgueiro. Essa ideia surgiu a partir do propósito de tornar o processo de ensino aprendizagem da língua inglesa em algo mais envolvente, onde os estudantes pudessem ver a teoria entrando em prática diante de seus olhos. Recorremos a prática da escrita para fugir do binômio conteúdo – prova no intuito de engajar os estudantes na produção de sua nota final. Visto que o ensino da prática de escrita tornou-se mais importante nos últimos anos devido à chegada de novas formas de comunicação escrita rápida tais como o whatsapp e outros aplicativos de comunicação através de textos é importante que chances de praticar essa habilidade não sejam desprezadas.

O objetivo do exercício foi fazer com que os estudantes produzissem um texto a partir das respostas a onze perguntas sobre o mesmo contexto: “A Weekend Romance”. Essas perguntas envolviam o conteúdo gramatical que foi por eles estudado na disciplina de Inglês II: O Simple Past Tense. As perguntas foram as seguintes:

1. Who was the man?
2. Where did he go for the weekend?
3. Where did he stay?
4. Who was the woman?
5. Where did they meet?
6. What did the man say to the woman?
7. What did the woman say to the man?
8. Where did they go?

9. What did they do?
10. What happened next?
11. At the end of the weekend, what did they decide to do?

O resultado final é uma coleção de histórias românticas, engraçadas, surpreendentes e comoventes que vão desde o casal que ficou junto para sempre até aqueles dois pombinhos que não saíram da friend zone, passando por um rapaz que achou que havia sido roubado, mas, no fim das contas, sua parceira apenas tinha saído para comprar pão. Enfim, a imaginação dos estudantes trabalhou em alta rotação. Espero que vocês curtam!

It was 2010. Heitor and Cecilia were still teenagers when they met. He went to his family's beach house that weekend with his friends to forget about heart problems. He had never seen that girl in town. Reading his favorite book also helped to stir up his curiosity.

Cecilia didn't even want to be there. The only reason she gave in to her friend's attempts to get her out of the house was the insistence of her mother, who also thought she needed to interact more with people. But that was far from happening. Cecilia sat down, took her favorite book and started reading it again. Until she heard a voice behind her:

- "The things we usually do are like ghosts that everyone can see, but pretend they can't." It's a great book. Do you like it? In fact, my name is Heitor. - said the smiling boy.

- My name is Cecilia and yes, I really like this book. - She was visibly disturbed and that only made her even more ashamed of the situation. She didn't know the boy in front of her. Who recites book quotations to strangers?

Of course, that didn't really bother her. In fact, she was amazed - both because the boy knew her favorite book, and because he was handsome.

- I think I scared you. I'm sorry. - Heitor gave a shameful smile and she began to wonder if she had let so much transparency.

- It's okay, don't worry. It's just not every day that a complete stranger approaches me quoting my favorite book.

Heitor laughed. Cecilia began to laugh with him, finding him more and more handsome. He was delighted with her smile.

– There's a lot of noise here, don't you think?. I know a quieter place here on the beach, I like to go there to read. You want me to take you there? We could even talk about this book, which, by the way, is also my favorite. - he said, reaching out to help her to get up.

Cecilia's smile widened. She took Heitor's hand and they both walked and talked.

The place really was very calm. The two sat on the sand and started talking about the book. With each word out of Cecilia's mouth, Heitor was even more amazed at the girl. The girl got lost in the conversation, admiring the company. Time went by in the blink of an eye.

When the moon began to appear, the two of them were scared. They hadn't even realized that the sun had set. They laughed at the situation and decided to meet the next day in the morning, in the same place.

Cecilia came home with the biggest smile in the world. His mother was happy that the experience had worked. The daughter kissed her in the face, ate a snack and went up to the room.

The other day, Heitor left the house early, looking forward to the reunion. She found Cecilia sitting on a picnic towel, with a basket on her lap. As soon as she saw him, she smiled.

Once again, the day passed quickly. However, as the next day Heitor would have to leave, they decided that they would spend the night together as well. Talking under the stars, with his head on Cecilia's lap, Heitor recited another sentence from the book that connected them, one that since yesterday did not leave his head:

– "It's simple to love someone. But it's hard to know when it's necessary to say it aloud."

On a cold Friday night Michael was once again bored. The boring days never got any better and knowing that he needed a scenery change he decided to go to Vegas. After all, even a grown-up man needs to have fun. Packing, he soon departed. He decided to stay in a $100 2 stars hotel and Saturday morning go to a good casino. After getting off the elevator, he saw an astonishing pretty woman asking the receptionist for directions. Unintentionally hearing the conversation, he discovered that they were going to the same place, the nearest casino. Starting a conversation asking to go with her to the place, he discovered that her name was Claire. She was from San Francisco and she was traveling this weekend, staying in Las Vegas for the Saturday and then, on the Sunday, was going to Los Angeles. They talked for a while and arrived at the casino.

It was the end of the day. Claire and Michael had lots of fun gambling, losing or winning, they felt they needed more. But they planned to go together to Los Angeles and exchanged contacts.

The following day, they kept on Claire's plan. Going to the Universal Studios, the Zoo, theaters, the Hollywood Sign and finally Santa Monica Beach. It was such a beautiful place. Vivid and golden as the sunlight of sunset hits the sand. The sea wind blows her hair as Michael's focused eyes scans her figure. When their eyes met, they knew what was this feeling but they also knew that it wasn't to be. They just knew. After being silent for some time Michael broke the silence saying that he didn't want to cut their relationship for some crush that may ruin them in the future. It sure can end bad but he still didn't want to let go. Somehow Claire felt the same. Maybe they are meant to be but we're being so weak to face it.

The sun was nowhere to be seen. Unlike them, who decided to remain just friends and go out on some weekends ahead.

As remembering the first time they met, Michael opened his eyes and took a look at the woman near to him. Sitting on a blue stool, with light white hair and wrinkles over her face and hand, which was holding his. Her beauty never changed, it got even better in his opinion. Feeling his time ticking away, he takes a weak breath and says to her: "I wish... I hadn't been such a weakling back there haha..."

With red eyes she smiled.

"Almost nothing would have changed, silly" Claire said back. Closing his eyes, he can feel her lips touching the back of his hand. Trying to smile but failing, he hears a sob, then a long and annoying beep sound that fades away together with his strength.

Brian was a funny, optimistic, stylish guy and also a very famous novel writer.

But he didn't want fame and he liked his privacy, so he adopted the Pseudonym "Jackson Davis". He couldn't write anymore, he was blocked.

So, looking for inspiration for his stories, he decided to spend the weekend in Ottawa, Canada, in a farmhouse he rented. Carol, the owner of the farm, was a young, hardworking and relaxed woman, who tried to pretend to be resistant to emotions because of a betrayal by her fiance, she was very fond of animals, especially horses, she also loved romantic books.

When Brian arrived at the farm, he soon saw Carol taking care of a horse, among so many beauties created in Jackson's mind, he had never seen or imagined such grace as that of that simple countrywoman, not knowing what he would do, he finally decided to approach : "I like horses, it's because of them that we know if people are trustworthy," he told her as he saw her petting a horse. "Jackson Davis!" She said. "What?" He asked in surprise. - This phrase is from a book by Jackson Davis, a writer I like a lot. But, what's your name? - She asked. - Or, pleasure, my name is Brian Cole. - Ah, you are my new guest, I am Carol, come, I will take you to your cottage. "Do you know anyone who can take me on a city tour?" He asked. - I'm available tomorrow, I can, but now you'd better rest. Carol advised. In the morning they went sightseeing. "Shall we go to Parliament Hill?" Brian suggested. "No, it's closed!" Replied Carol. – But, in the app it shows that it is open. He said – The app is wrong! She finishes. Then, they went back to the farm. – Do you drink? - Carol asked. – Yes. – What do you suggest? Then Carol came in and got Whiskey from the cupboard, and they started drinking .Conversations came and went, and it seemed like they had known each other for a long time, until Brian said: -The app was right. – I knew. Carol replied. "I came to Ottawa and didn't see Parliament Hill, because of you. It was not cool," he replied. - Your fiance proposed to you there, and then left you, it was not cool either. The silence had been established in the place, and Brian's regretted for being impolite, even if unintentionally. – It's like Nicholas Sparks says, "Although love can hurt, it can also heal. "At that time, time stopped for both of them, Carol seemed helpless, she didn't know what to say, he had touched her with those words. Brian didn't know how to act, so many novels written by Jackson, but at that moment the story was just Brian's.Until Carol took courage and spoke with a sigh: –The right person at the wrong time, it had to happen to myself. "There is no right person or wrong time, just now," said Brian. "Look who's talking, Jackson Davis himself!" "What? Did you already know?" He asked, startled. "A strange man is coming to stay at my farm, and you really think I wasn't going to research him? Although I might even have mysuspicious, but now you just confirmed it," she said, and the two started laughing. – Yeah... I think I'm going to like Ottawa, it doesn't hurt to stay here a little longer, he said smiling. – I have no doubts about that! - She finished.

A Weekend Romance

Luis Eduardo Soares & Carlos Eduardo Vilela

Clodoaldo Severino, known by his friends as “Clodô”, a reputed plastic surgeon that is tired of a monotonous and lonely routine, decided to visit a place to clear his mind and enjoy new experiences. After some search on non-suspicious websites, he found a Resort next to some beaches with natural pools and a wide variety of fauna and flora, real paradise... What he wasn't expecting is that the resort was a “half-assed” place, and the natural area was totally restricted and protected by the environmental guard, which certainly frustrated him. But, hey, don't take it bad, there is always something good in bad situations.

Marinete Cerafin, employee of a beauty salon, heard of a friend of hers, who nicknamed her affectionately “Mari”, that there was a cheap resort in a place next to the suburbs, a good place to relax on the weekend. It seemed a good opportunity to Mari, since fixing hairs, doing nails and gossiping was getting kind of boring... Then, getting the bags and all her courage, our dear hair stylist went to the resort.

In the reception desk, Clodô and Mari are impatient with the service.

– I can't believe that nobody will come to help us. -Clodô says, hoping to start a conversation where his boredom would soon be relieved.

– This isn't surprise, judging the place... But they could at least be more receptive. -Said Mari, a little upset.

– Well, I think that nobody’s working by now. There’s a natural area nearby, it’s restricted, then we can’t get in, but it’s better than staying here. Do you want to go? – A Clodô’s attempt to “break the ice”.

With no more options, they both went to the wonderful area totally surrounded. -Got an idea. What about getting in?

– Which part of “Unauthorized people are prohibited” didn’t you understand, Clodô?

– We have nothing to do and we only live once... What can happen?

Mari fell face down after trying to jump a fence and ended up with a swollen face.

– Oh my, are you ok? I told you not to do that! - Said Clodô, in despair.

– In my defense, I didn’t know that the floor was so hard. Said Mari.

Those words touch Clodô’s heart, who offered Mari a plastic surgery, asking only for her phone number in exchange. And from a Resort to a plastic surgery, a great romance was born.

A Weekend Romance

Rodolfo is a friend of mine who spent a weekend at the beach of Porto de Galinhas in Pernambuco during the summer holidays, he returned today from this trip a little different with an excess of happiness, energy and began to watch romantic comedies. I believe the goal of the trip was to bring happiness and new airs and in that part it worked but the romantic comedies are kind of unusual. I was curious and asked him how was the trip I think Rodolfo was just waiting for my question to tell me in details his adventures in Porto de Galinhas.

His excitement to remember these events was so great that the comrade jumped from the chair to speak, so much animation made us laugh a lot then he started the story: he said that as soon as he arrived at the hotel , The Village Porto de Galinhas, he got ready fast and went straight to the beach with his parents and older brother, there were bathers doing various activities such as fishing, playing footvolley, riding jet skis and speedboats among other beach amusements, Rodolfo did not know anyone there and while his parents were having coconut water, he and his brother Ronaldo went for a walk.

During the walk they were called by a group of young people to form a team of foot volley, a sport they are good at. The guys presented themselves to the team and it was at that moment of history that Rodolfo indirectly told me the cause of his extreme happiness after this trip. Through this game he met a girl who was in the opposing team, Rodolfo showed me pictures of hers and now his passionate good humor makes total sense , his name is Elisa and she is a beautiful girl just like the girl from Ipanema "look what a beautiful thing full of grace" I made this joke to Rodolfo and I think, by the face he made, that he did not like it. Love at first sight with the right to jealousy and punch me in the arm. But returning to the story, as soon as he saw her, he told me that he was hot, and began to sweat, his heart sped up and for a moment Elisa was in slow motion before his eyes. At the end of the game that by the way, his team lost, he said: "besides being beautiful you are also a good player", she reacted to the compliment laughing and calling him a fool.

After that they talked until they got to the hotel and Rodolfo invited her to do something. Elisa not only accepted but also gave him her phone number and Instagram contact. After a while they met again in the lobby of the hotel and were respectively in the landscaped gardens, they went tree climbing, played football but this time he won and at about 18:47 there would be an outdoor dinner with live music. So far Rodolfo said he had only told me about Friday that was when he arrived at the Hotel, in those three days they enjoyed a lot, they got to know each other well and developed a weekend romance. Rodolfo told me they have a lot in common, for example both like sports in general, Marvel and DC. The two of them are also fluent in English.

Rodolfo finally said Elisa was the love that came out of nowhere. Rodolfo told me that the most remarkable day of this trip was the Sunday of their first kiss that curiously happened while they were watching a classic of the world cinema, "the City Lights" one of the most amazing films by Charlie Chaplin. After that they had already considered themselves a couple, I congratulated my friend on his date, but one question came to my mind: where does Elisa live?, Rodolfo told me that she lives in Juazeiro da Bahia. Where by coincidence he will attend college. So, after this, I saw that this weekend trip was perfect in every way.
